Makes Third Visit To Ball Park

President Fast Becoming Nation's Top Sports Fan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, striking a blow for the sports enthusiast who would rather sit in the stands and watch than participate, is fast becoming the nation's best known sports spectator.

After his news conference Thursday night, Nixon went to Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, arriving just in time to see the Washington Senators drop a 2-0 decision to the league-leading Baltimore Orioles.

It was the third visit to a Senators' game this year for Nixon, who arrived in the eighth inning with the score tied 0-0. He is the first chief executive to attend a ball game other than the opener since Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Since he was elected last November, Nixon has come to typify the Americans who prefer to watch sports events rather than actively engaging in athletics.

Nixon does not publicly participate in sports as some of his presidential predecessors—Eisenhower, golf; John F. Kennedy, touch football and sailing.

Rights Leader Arrested In Dixie March

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Civil rights leader Ralph David Abernathy was arrested early Saturday after leading 400 supporters of striking hospital workers in a march during which bottles, stones and bricks were thrown at policemen who tried to stop them.

Before order was restored following a confrontation of more than an hour, six policemen and a fireman were injured, several unoccupied automobiles were overturned and the Rev. Mr. Abernathy and three other demonstrators were arrested. National Guardsmen and state highway patrolmen helped police.

Gov. Robert McNair had ordered an unspecified number of national guardsmen to be placed on duty Friday. An aide said the guardsmen were requested as a precautionary measure by Charleston officials.

Too Young—Disqualified

FORT WALTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Merchants here are offering everything from pizzas to 30 pounds of free laundry to entice long-haired boys to submit to haircuts.

But the sole taker in three days was a tearful four-year-old whose mother dragged him into a barber shop only to find he was too young to qualify for the contest.

The curtain will go down tonight on the second annual Tri-State Pottery Festival, but only after another day of exciting events, including the "Pottery Olympics" and doorknob competition.

Favorable Weather Due As Fete Winds Up

The weatherman has been kind to the Tri-State Pottery Festival.

It will be mostly cloudy and warmer Sunday, with a chance of showers. The high will range from the mid to upper 70s.

About 3,000 attended the fete Friday, which was marred by rain and cold weather late in the evening after the rain cleared, the performances continued.

THE ROSE show will be held in pottery festival headquarters on E. 5th St. Judging is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. Leo Lawrence is chairman. The East Liverpool Dahlia and Rose Society and the East Liverpool Garden Club cooperated in planning the event.

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam reportedly has asked his advisers and cabinet ministers to consider setting up a joint commission of government and Viet Cong representatives to study procedures for electing a post-war government.

Informed sources said today that Thieu was trying to get solid governmental and military backing for the proposal before it is put before the Viet Cong.

The man mentioned to represent the government on the commission is Duong Van Minh — "Big Minh"—the popular general who led the 1963 overthrow of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Minh returned to South Vietnam from political exile last year but has stayed out of the limelight.

Government and American sources would not comment on the report.

Usually reliable informants said Thieu was not likely to disclose his plan but was mainly concerned with insuring support from his generals, who are suspicious of any dealings with the Viet Cong.

Thieu reportedly told President Nixon during their Midway talks June 8 that he would press the Viet Cong delegation in Paris to discuss election procedures. His moves in Saigon were seen as a preliminary step.

Informants said the South Vietnamese president wants such talks with the Viet Cong to be secret and might refuse to discuss the issue at the peace table or in public.

Prior agreement within the South Vietnamese government on a specific proposal would strengthen the government delegations position in Paris, and

Limit Eyed In Purchase Of Missiles

Senators Trying For Compromise In Safeguard Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators trying for a compromise in the antiballistic missile fight hope to strictly limit the number of Safeguard missiles the Pentagon can buy in the coming year.

This is in addition to their primary goal of prohibiting deployment of any ABMs at the two initial Safeguard sites in Montana and North Dakota until Congress later gives the go-ahead, sources said.

In addition, the sources said, the Senate Armed Services Committee is being asked to speak out in favor of a U.S. initiative to convince the Soviet Union to join in mutual cessation of testing and deployment of MIRVs, which would enable a multiwarhead-equipped missile to bear in on several different targets at once.

All of these points, including the MIRV issue, were in the conclusions of a majority report of a special research subcommittee forwarded to the full committee earlier in the week.

The report will come under scrutiny of the committee when it starts serious work of marking up the $21.9 billion military procurement authorization bill Tuesday.

Since the bill includes funds to procure, develop and test Spartan and Sprint missiles for ABM use, limits on any one of these activities could be written into the legislation either in the committee or on the Senate floor.

The MIRV issue is somewhat

Rockefeller By-Passes Monterideo

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller flies to the secluded Uruguayan resort city of Punta del Este today, bypassing the capital of Montevideo where anti-U.S. demonstrations have flared all week.

The New York governor had planned to make Montevideo the last stop on his current Latin American fact-finding trip for President Nixon, but continuing student unrest forced a switch in his scheduled meeting with President Jorge Pacheco Areco to a more secure area.

The army blocked the road to the Punta del Este peninsula 90 miles from the capital Friday, and only U.S. and Uruguayan officials were permitted to enter the city. It is winter in the southern hemisphere, and the resort city is cold, windy and almost deserted.

He is a graduate of Wellsville High School and a career airman.

Planes flew patrols over the city, and Uruguayan destroyers were anchored in the harbor on the Atlantic Ocean.

Hundreds of troops and heavily armed police patrolled the streets of Montevideo where groups of 300 to 400 students staged sporadic demonstrations Friday afternoon.

The demonstrators taunted police, blocked streets with wooden barricades and stoned buses but avoided any direct clashes with the authorities.

Terrorists set fire to a General Motors building earlier in the day, causing about $1 million damage. They also hurled fire bombs at a dozen businesses, most connected with U.S. interests.

Rockefeller spent Friday in Paraguay and met with President Alfredo Stroessner to discuss Stroessner's request for $15 million in long-term loans from the United States.

The governor also met with Paraguayan students and told them, "We are being very careful about making promises we can't keep. The meeting was described as cordial.

The visit to Paraguay was generally peaceful, although a student and a policeman were injured Friday when high school students clashed with police during a demonstration in Asuncion against the government.

YEAST AND YOUR SEPTIC TANK

Dating from Biblical days, yeast has been one of nature's most valuable aids, yet was an enigma. Yeast's ability to create reactions in hops and other fermentable materials was a mystery which baffled chemists over the centuries, and only in recent years have our modern scientists discovered that yeast cells produce enzymes which affect starches and sugars, creating alcohol as one of the end products. This is why yeast is so invaluable to the brewing industry.

Yeast also has many other uses, such as the leavening of bread, etc., and, in the past, has been used widely as an aid to the operation of septic tanks. Even today, many rural home owners persist in the addition of yeast to their sewage systems.

To understand the effect of yeast on a sewage system, it must be clearly understood that THE ENZYMES IN YEAST WILL ONLY WORK ON STARCHES AND SUGARS. In the early part of this century, home baking and canning contributed greatly to the starch and sugar content of sewage waste, and the addition of yeast was of some definite advantage. However, today's housewife purchases most of her bread, cake and canned foods from the market, and studies of the nature of today's waste show a marked INCREASE in fats and greases, with a DECREASE in sugars and starches. The addition of quantities of yeast to today's system can actually create problems, since with nothing to work on, the yeast will pass into the drainage areas and create a clogging condition. Yeast also creates a gaseous condition which prevents the sewage from settling in the tank, and uses up valuable oxygen, necessary to bacterial digestion.

Today's smart homeowner uses SEA-CAL ENZYMES to correct and prevent sewage problems. Scientifically developed for today's waste systems, SEA-CAL contains the correct balance of enzymes to maintain top operating efficiency in septic tank and cesspool systems. SEA-CAL is the MODERN treatment for MODERN sewage systems.

The new starting time was announced by Charles P. Henderson, program director, during a meeting of the planning committee Wednesday.

The tentative program includes a flag raising at the new gymnasium by the Midland High School Band and American Legion Post 481 and 533 at 9 a.m., formation of the parade at the 1st St. playground at 10 and start of the parade at 11.

Children's races at Lincoln Park, 1 p.m.; variety show at the park band shell, 1:30 to 4; American Legion baseball at Crucible Field, 2; concert by Jimmy Sebastian's band at the band shell, 4 to 7; drum and bugle corps exhibition at the high school stadium, 7:30 to 9:30, and the aerial fireworks display, 9:45.

The variety show will include a magician, puppets and other acts with Chuck Wilson as emcee. The fireworks can be viewed from the stadium.

Henderson said the afternoon variety show is nearly complete. Four senior and two junior units will participate in the drum and bugle corps event. The Pittsburgh Rockets will perform.

Some 18 musical groups are expected for the parade. William Selepesc, winner of the celebrity slogan contest, will march with the Midland band rather than ride as honorary parade marshal. He will sit at the reviewing stand. The theme is "One Nation - One People."

YEAST AND YOUR SEPTIC TANK

Dating from Biblical days, yeast has been one of nature's most valuable aids, yet was an enigma. Yeast's ability to create reactions in hops and other fermentable materials was a mystery which baffled chemists over the centuries, and only in recent years have our modern scientists discovered that yeast cells produce enzymes which affect starches and sugars, creating alcohol as one of the end products. This is why yeast is so invaluable to the brewing industry.

Yeast also has many other uses, such as the leavening of bread, etc., and, in the past, has been used widely as an aid to the operation of septic tanks. Even today, many rural home owners persist in the addition of yeast to their sewage systems.

To understand the effect of yeast on a sewage system, it must be clearly understood that THE ENZYMES IN YEAST WILL ONLY WORK ON STARCHES AND SUGARS. In the early part of this century, home baking and canning contributed greatly to the starch and sugar content of sewage waste, and the addition of yeast was of some definite advantage. However, today's housewife purchases most of her bread, cake and canned foods from the market and studies of the nature of today's waste show a marked INCREASE in fats and greases, with a DECREASE in sugars and starches. The addition of quantities of yeast to today's system can actually create problems, since with nothing to work on, the yeast will pass into the drainage areas and create a clogging condition. Yeast also creates a gaseous condition which prevents the sewage from settling in the tank, and uses up valuable oxygen, necessary to bacterial digestion.

Today's smart homeowner uses SEA-CAL ENZYME to correct and prevent sewage problems. Scientifically developed for today's waste systems, SEA-CAL contains the correct balance of enzymes to maintain top operating efficiency in septic tank and cesspool systems. SEA-CAL is the MODERN treatment for MODERN sewage systems.

Discontent: Mark Of Success

Much is made of the fact that half the nation's population is under 30 years of age. This is often suggested as the explanation of student unrest.

But in all historical eras, the vast portion of the population has always been under 30, counters a psychologist. In primitive societies, most people died before they reached that age.

IF CHRONOLOGICAL YOUTH alone was enough to insure rebellion, the advanced societies — where more of the population reaches old age than ever before in history — should be the least revolutionary and primitive societies the most. This is not the case says Kenneth Kenniston, associate professor of psychology at Yale Medical School.

More relevant factors, he says, are the degree of involvement of those under 30 with the established institutions of society and the opportunities that society provides for their continuing intellectual, ethical and emotional development.

It is difficult for us to believe it now but until the end of the Middle Ages no separate stage of childhood was recognized in Western societies. Infancy ended at six or seven (the "age of reason" in Catholic teaching), whereupon children were integrated into adult society to work as junior partners in the adult world.

The recognition of adolescence as a separate stage of life is of even more recent origin, the product of the 19th and 20th centuries. Only as industrial societies became prosperous enough to defer adult work until after puberty could they create institutions — like widespread secondary school education — that would extend adolescence to virtually all young people.

Hindsight Is Often Amazing

The hindsight of former public officials in proposing solutions of knotty problems for their successors is nothing short of amazing.

The first such self-appointed counselor to open his fountain of knowledge to the new administration was Ambassador-at-Large Averell Harriman, U.S. delegation chief at the Paris peace talks under the Johnson administration.

A couple of weeks ago, Mr. Harriman voiced criticism of the Nixon administration's conduct of the negotiations, now under the direction of Henry Cabot Lodge. He didn't like the way things are going but, in our judgment, wasn't specific about just how they could be improved.

NOW COMES THE FORMER secretary of defense, Clark M. Clifford, with the suggestion that 100,000 American troops be withdrawn from Vietnam this year and that our disengagement become complete by the end of 1970.

Mr. Clifford argues that the basic U.S. objective — to keep the Communist North from seizing the South — has been largely accomplished. This will come as good news to U.S. combat troops in South Vietnam, who doubtless are convinced that Hanoi has been stalled but are wary about a take-over of the South if Allied forces are completely withdrawn.

Drawing Some Conclusions

One of the criticisms directed at the radical protesters who would, according to their own words, destroy our system of government is that they offer nothing better in its place.

Yet if we can draw some conclusions from the actions of one of the most radical groups, the Students for a Democratic Society, at their convention in Chicago, a few of the changes they would make hardly could be considered democratic.

APPARENTLY THEY WOULD eliminate freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

For that is what they did, by vote of the nearly 1,500 members in attendance, at their convention. According to their inter-organizational secretary, "The group voted overwhelmingly to exclude all capitalist press from the convention."

New Information On Riots

Official studies of the big-city riots which occurred in April 1968 after the assassination of Rev. Martin Luther King provide graphic evidence of who gets hurt most when a tide of violence rolls over a metropolitan area.

Findings, given in testimony at congressional hearings, include:

IN WASHINGTON, 80 per cent of those businesses hit were small neighborhood shops and 34 per cent had a total income of less than $5,000 a year.

More than one-third of the damaged businesses produced earnings for owners near or below the poverty level.

Of the jobs destroyed in Washington by the 1968 riots, 57 per cent were held by Negroes.

A large percentage of the looted stores in Washington were family establishments run by people in their 50s and 60s. These were the businesses that normally would have been sold to Negroes as the owners retired or died.

Researchers estimate this changeover would have been about completed in less than 20 years.

It is interesting that, in proportion to their numbers, Negro-managed stores were hit as frequently as white-operated shops.

For the most part, looters hit stores where the booty was easy to carry away without regard to grievances against or friendship with the owners.

IN SOME CASES, the looters were better off than the proprietors of the stores being ransacked.

Evidence that is being gathered goes against the concept that riots break out as backlash to economic oppression and are aimed at business-

Today, in more developed nations we are beginning to witness the recognition of still another stage of life.

Mr. Kenniston says this is the stage of "youth." This stage, which continues into the 20s and sometimes the 30s, provides opportunities for intellectual, emotional and moral development that were never afforded to any other large group in history.

In the student revolts, Mr. Kenniston says, we are seeing one result of this.

What the advanced nations have done is create their own critics on a mass basis. Young people in college have been freed from the requirements of work, of gainful employment and even marriage, which permits them to criticize society from a protected position of disengagement.

It is not that industrial societies have failed to keep all their promises but that they have succeeded in some ways beyond all expectations.

MANY OF TODAY'S students have never experienced anything but affluence, political freedom and social equality. Not all of them, but many of them, are searching for a new vision, a new set of values, a new set of targets "beyond freedom and affluence."

But they also know that millions have not yet achieved these benefits they take for granted.

"What characterizes student unrest in the developed nations," says Mr. Kenniston, "is this peculiar mixture of the old and the new, the urgent need to fulfill the promises of the past and, at the same time, to define the possibilities of the future."

A more generous appraisal of themselves, our favored youths could not hope to ask for.

We are impelled to ask Mr. Harriman and Mr. Clifford what great changes have evolved since their days in the previous administration that would now give them license to find fault with the lack of progress under the new administration.

Certainly Mr. Harriman failed of any noteworthy accomplishments at Paris. Negotiations were even more deadlocked in his day than they are today.

And what did Mr. Clifford do by way of troop withdrawals while he was in command of the Defense Department that would qualify him as an expert on the subject now?

AT LEAST THE NIXON administration has ordered the withdrawal of 25,000 troops as quickly as possible, with a projection of as many as 75,000 more by the end of the year if the South Vietnamese forces demonstrate any kind of capacity for taking over a greater part of the combat burden.

We strongly recommend that those who fell far short of any meaningful solutions to the Southeast Asian blunder while they were in office ought to maintain a discreet silence about the presumed lack of progress of their successors.

Perhaps the perspective makes a difference.

A Right Removed

WASHINGTON — Ever since collective bargaining was recognized more than 30 years ago by federal law as the right of workers in America, it has been generally thought by the public that formal determination as to whether a labor union had a majority in a given plant could be made only as a result of an election by secret ballot.

But this week this Supreme Court of the United States completely demolished the idea that an election is a prerequisite to ordering an employer to bargain with a union. It ruled that the mere presentation of labor-union "authorization cards" reflecting a majority is adequate.

What this means is that a worker doesn't always have the right to express himself privately as to whether he desires a certain union to represent him in bargaining with his employer.

THIS MAY BE a surprise to many people who have believed that whenever elections of any importance are held, either by private organizations or by the government, the individual has a right to a secret ballot — which is unsigned and not subject by any means to identification.

The National Labor Relations Board has been insisting for a long time that an election was not necessary under certain circumstances, particularly if there were unfair labor practices by an employer which seemed to prevent a fair election.

The board, on the other hand, has not taken into account that coercion is frequently used to compel workers to sign "authorization cards" for the union and that rarely will an employee venture to make public accusations about such pressure for fear of further harassment.

Employers have complained from time to time — and lower federal courts sometimes have agreed — that some of the cards presented by the union as "authorized" were actually obtained through false misrepresentations or through intimidation of the employees.

Workers find it difficult to refuse to sign a card handed them by a fellow worker. If they decline to sign, the word is passed around in the shop and threats of reprisals by union supporters or organizers usually follow.

The secret ballot permits a worker to express himself for or against a union but he will no longer have that opportunity in all instances. Hereafter, he will be subject to the coercion inherent in the fact that fellow workers who put the card before him will know whether or not he has signed the "authorization."

The general impression has been that, under the Taft-Hartley Act of 1947, bargaining rights were to be determined only through secret-ballot elections. The Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals agreed with that contention in three cases which recently went before the Supreme Court.

But the Supreme Court, in an opinion written by Chief Justice Earl Warren, gave its own interpretation, and rejected that argument flatly. It stated that "a union is not limited to board election" in order to prove majority status.

The court referred also to a bargaining representative as the one "designated or selected by a majority of the employees. The decision of the Supreme Court now is that an employer has a duty to bargain whenever the union representative presents "convincing evidence of majority support."

But the big question left unanswered is how it is going to be proved that the evidence is valid and that no form of coercion has been used. The lower court pointed out that Congress, in the 1947 law, had made elections "the sole basis for certification of a union by the National Labor Relations Board."

THE SUPREME COURT says this does not mean that the board has no other way of determining that a majority status exists or that a fair election may be impossible because of unfair labor practices by an employer.

The secret-ballot election would appear to be the only fair way to get a workers honest opinion as to whether or not he wishes to join a labor union.

If the National Labor Relations Board has reason to think an employer has interfered or used coercion, another election could readily be held and policed by the board to insure that no unfair labor practice occurs.

A Blockade Of The South

NEW YORK — When even the most powerful labor leaders find themselves in the "crunch" and want to wheel in their heaviest gun, they call on bantam Teddy Gleason, legendary longshoremen leader.

Mr. Gleason, who tries to give the impression, in his muscular world, of an absent-minded bookkeeper, has gone eye-ball to eye-ball with the foreign governments and American presidents.

Now he's preparing to take on the State of South Carolina, its governor Robert McNair and entire legions of Congressmen. All in behalf of the symbolic and historic Charleston, S.C., 450 hospital strikers behind whom already have rallied the entire labor movement, a not inconsequential part of its treasury, manpower, national organizers and the mystique of Mrs. Coretta (Martin Luther) King and virtually all the nation's black leaders.

THIS CONFRONTATION is well worth observing loosely even during these days of chain reaction turbulence around the globe. The struck South Carolina State Medical College and the Charleston County hospitals are a new frontier. They were hit on March 20 by a union headquarters here, which proclaims proudly that the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. called it his "favorite union." Over on West 43rd Street, it has been training young organizers sent in by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Its goal is to unionize, under the banner of Local 1199, as many as possible of the million workers in the land's 7,200 hospitals and 5,000 nursing homes.

The local is an AFL-CIO affiliate chartered by the Retail, Wholesale and Dept. Store Union — and thus it is in the very same fraternity with Teddy Gleason's 80,000 Longshoremen.

Now "Teddy" (no one ever calls him Mister Gleason) is ready to blockade the coast of South Carolina in retaliation for its refusal to recognize and bargain with the union to which the hospital strikers turned when they "hit the bricks" last March.

"Teddy" plans first to ask his Charleston Local 1422 (ILA) to stop unloading or turning over ships pulling into the busy harbor there. This would pull out about 1,200 dockworkers. At the same time he would "hit" the smaller harbors at Port Royal and Georgetown. This would idle some 400 pier workers.

IT WOULD ALSO cripple business in the state considerably by affecting imports, trucking, rail shipments and embargoing raw material needed by the state's industries.

If the ships are diverted to, say "nearby" Savannah, Ga., the ILA would down tools there too, if I read "Teddy" correctly. And I do.

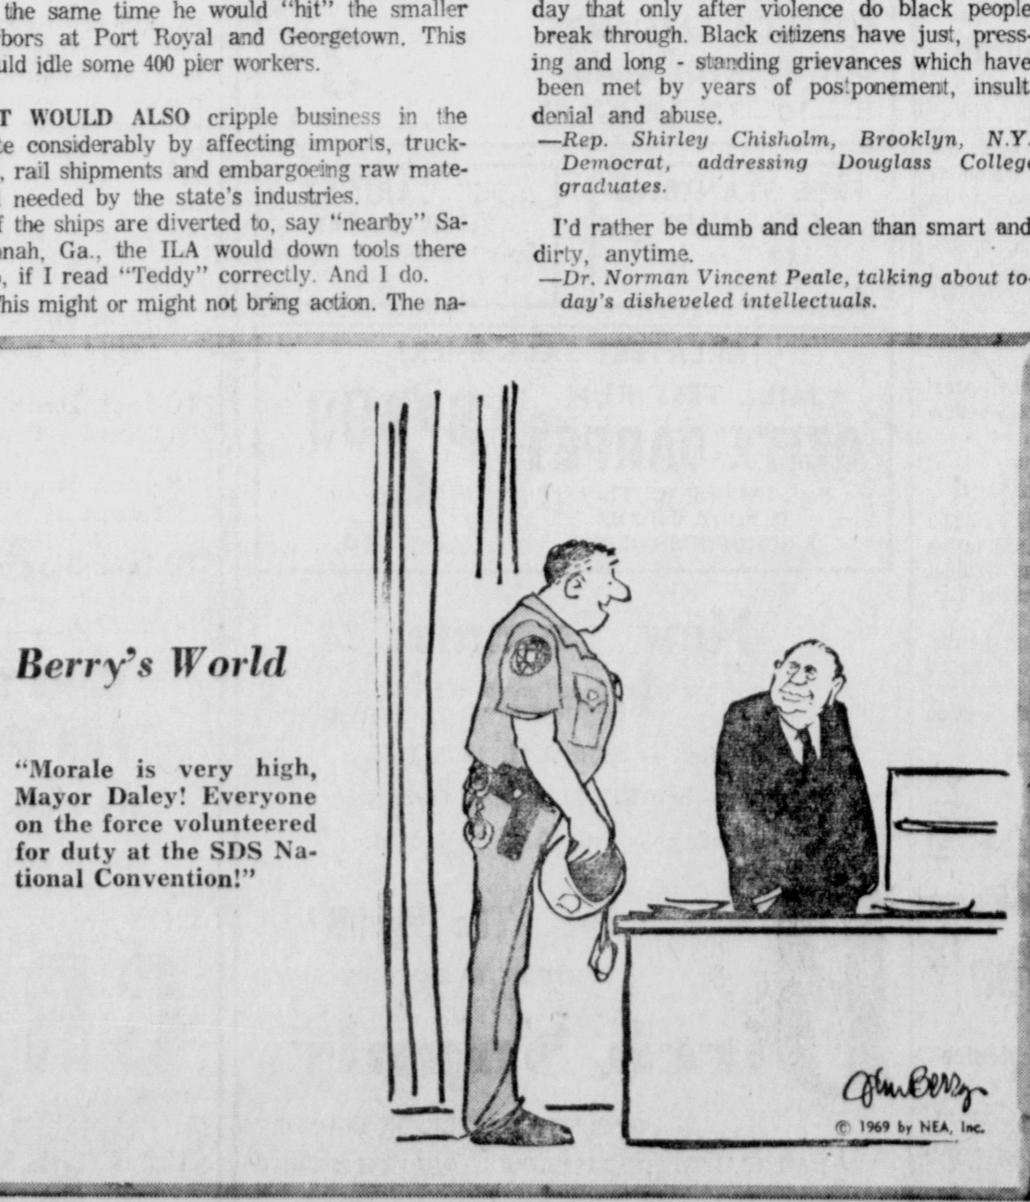

This might or might not bring action. The nature is sad but true in the United States today that only after violence do black people break through. Black citizens have just, pressuring and long-standing grievances which have been met by years of postponement, insult, denial and abuse.

A water pipe broke Thursday and "rained out" their display and the roof literally fell in Friday.

But, true to tradition, the Camp Fire Girls are carrying on at Tri-State Pottery Festival headquarters in the Moore building on E. 5th St.

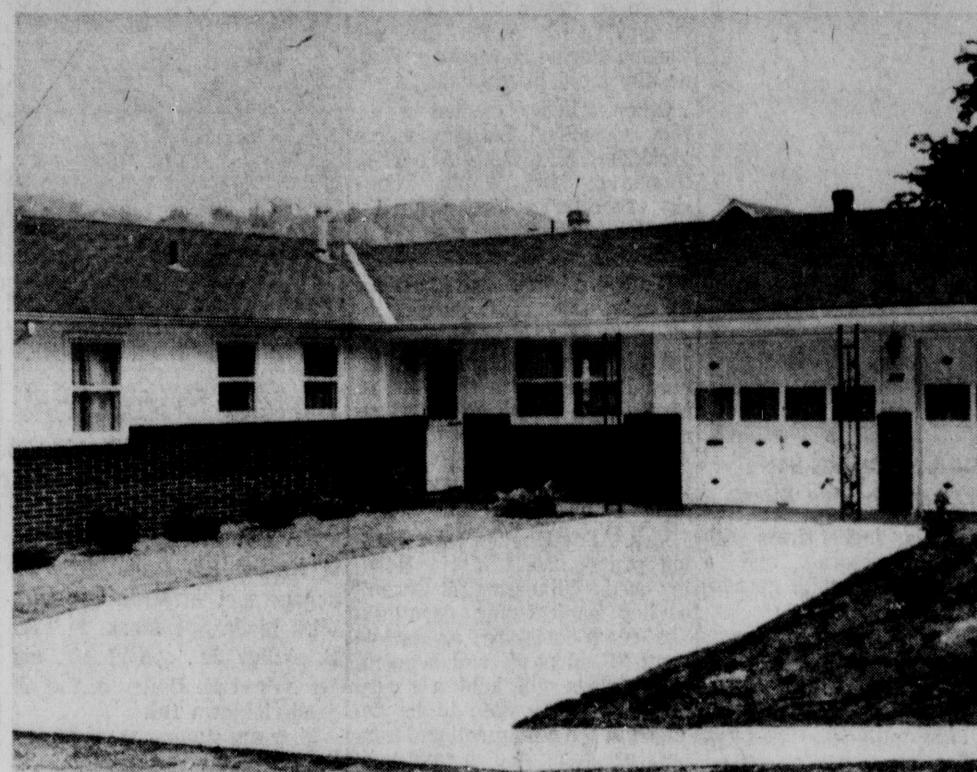

When disaster first struck, executives of Kinokoa Council swung into action. Quickly reassembling the booth and decorations in another section of the basement were Mrs. Irene Schlang, president; Mrs. June Bette ridge, executive secretary; Mrs. Beverly Bayley, membership chairman; Mrs. Harriet Faulk, group organizer, and Mrs. Annabel White, program chairman.

When the ceiling gave way Friday, another cleanup was necessary.

With the festival in the home stretch, the girls and their supervisors were keeping their campfires crossed today in the hope that all goes well.

HURRY UP and RELAX

Highways, superhighways, turnpikes, expressways—they crisscross America, leading in every imaginable direction. And, they get you there so fast, you are past the right exit before you know it. We live in such a speed-oriented world that, when we are not working, we feel we must "hurry up and relax." At times we even feel guilty when we are not busy about something.

We don't really like our foolish pace. We speak longingly of peace of mind and quietude, and we take tranquilizers by the ton. We search frantically...on vacations, on "lost weekends," on "fun activities"...but tranquility is hard to find.

Perhaps we are seeking too hard. Perhaps tranquility is not to be sought. Rather, isn't it what happens when you are at peace with yourself, no matter the circumstances?

You can be at peace with yourself only when you are at peace with God. He is the very center of your being, and His peace is freely given when you accept it.

Accept this great gift of God in the very best place of all—His Church.

When 2nd Was First

By ROBERT POPP

A VERITABLE MUSEUM of East Liverpool's past, 2nd St. lies quiet and near-deserted in the hot summer sun, in the last throes of a slow and ugly death that contrasts sharply with a virile, promising youth.

Like a grandparent of old left to doze and dream in a chimney corner, the venerable street still can call forth visions of the past when it was the center of all the mercantile activity of the community — and a lot of the revelry and entertainment, too.

Many East Liverpool residents approaching Social Security age recall with fondness the days when 2nd St.'s pavements echoed to the clopping of many horses' hooves and the clatter of iron-wheeled wagons and streetcars threading their way through the business district crowds.

Twenty or more trains wheeled into the depot every 24 hours, discharging swarms of passengers who hurried

E. 2ND ST. JUST WEST of Broadway was a flourishing business center at the turn of the century. The famed Hotel McKinley, finest in the city in the day, is at left center.

Store and Rayl's Meat Market, almost directly across the street from the restaurant.

Many of the political and social intrigues of the day were threshed out underneath the marquee at the Hotel McKinley or in its plush lobby. Most travelers of note who stopped overnight here were guests at the McKinley. The old hostelry degenerated down through the years, finishing its days under the name Hotel DeSylvan as a rooming house. After it finally closed, it was sold by the federal government to satisfy a tax lien and it since has been converted to commercial use.

Brozka remembers in his boyhood that the McKinley had a grand, plush lobby, but he can't recall many of the details. He recalls it was "the best hotel in town" at the time. The late Frank R. O'Hanlon recalled interviewing a visiting senator in the hotel in the era before World War I when he was a cub reporter. And—a half century later and shortly before his death—he remembered the senator cutting off the interview abruptly because he thought one of the reporter's questions was impudent.

THE LATE Patrick J. O'Farrell, who was secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, recalled hustling to the 2nd St. depot with a pushcart loaded with newspapers, hot off the presses at the Morning Tribune, and the brisk business that awaited him among the travelers. Industries as well as retail business flourished along 2nd St. and in the riverfront district.

In 1905, the year Brozka was born, John Schleiter's furniture store was flourishing at 128 2nd St., and Dave Devine ran an advertisement each day in the Evening Review: Coming or going, stop at Devine's Restaurant, west side of C&P Depot, 139-141 2nd St., D.A. Devine proprietor."

Brozka remembers the Bagley Co., which dealt in wholesale groceries and confectioners' supplies. It was at 151-153 E. 2nd St. The Bagley Co. imprint appears on a postcard view of flourishing 2nd St.

But businessmen were active, also in the stretch of 5th St. near Market St. and on the Diamond.

In February 1905, Frank Crook bought a lot on 5th St. from William Erlanger and announced he intended to erect a five-story brick business building that probably would cost $47,000. It was termed by the newspaper "the biggest real estate deal of the year." Crook's store then was at 5th and Markets Sts.

The east side of his newly-acquired property faced on what was called Mulberry Alley, now known as Crook Alley. He said it would be necessary to tear down the building occupying the tract, housing the Delmonico Club.

In addition to the business places on 2nd St., others were nearby on Broadway and Market Sts. Joseph Brothers Clothing Store was at 223-226 Market St. and James M. McDole was operating a wallpaper store at 265 Broadway. E.W. and Arthur D. Hill acquired the former home of the Daily Crisis—a building at Broadway and 3rd St.—and announced they would convert it into a warehouse.

W. Smith Fowler was asking Council to widen the sidewalk on the Diamond by at least three feet, remove the Civil War Monument and the pump in the center and put down new brick paving. He said the streetcar companies should erect a waiting room in the Diamond. He was described as the owner of a big tract of property on the west side of the Diamond.

A HUGE ice gorgo that had tied up river traffic for more than two weeks let go with a tremendous roar on the morning of Feb. 11, 1905, attracting hundreds to the shore. The newspaper related that many boats were damaged in the ensuing runoff. The next day, fire destroyed a shantyboat at the foot of Union St. and the indigent woman occupant and her five children applied for aid at City Hall.

C. A. Smith announced his new home overlooking Rock Springs Park in Chester would be completed by spring. Pleasant Heights residents were preparing to petition the Board of Education to build a new school in the growing residential area. They said the structure was meant to house 50 pupils and more than 60 were enrolled.

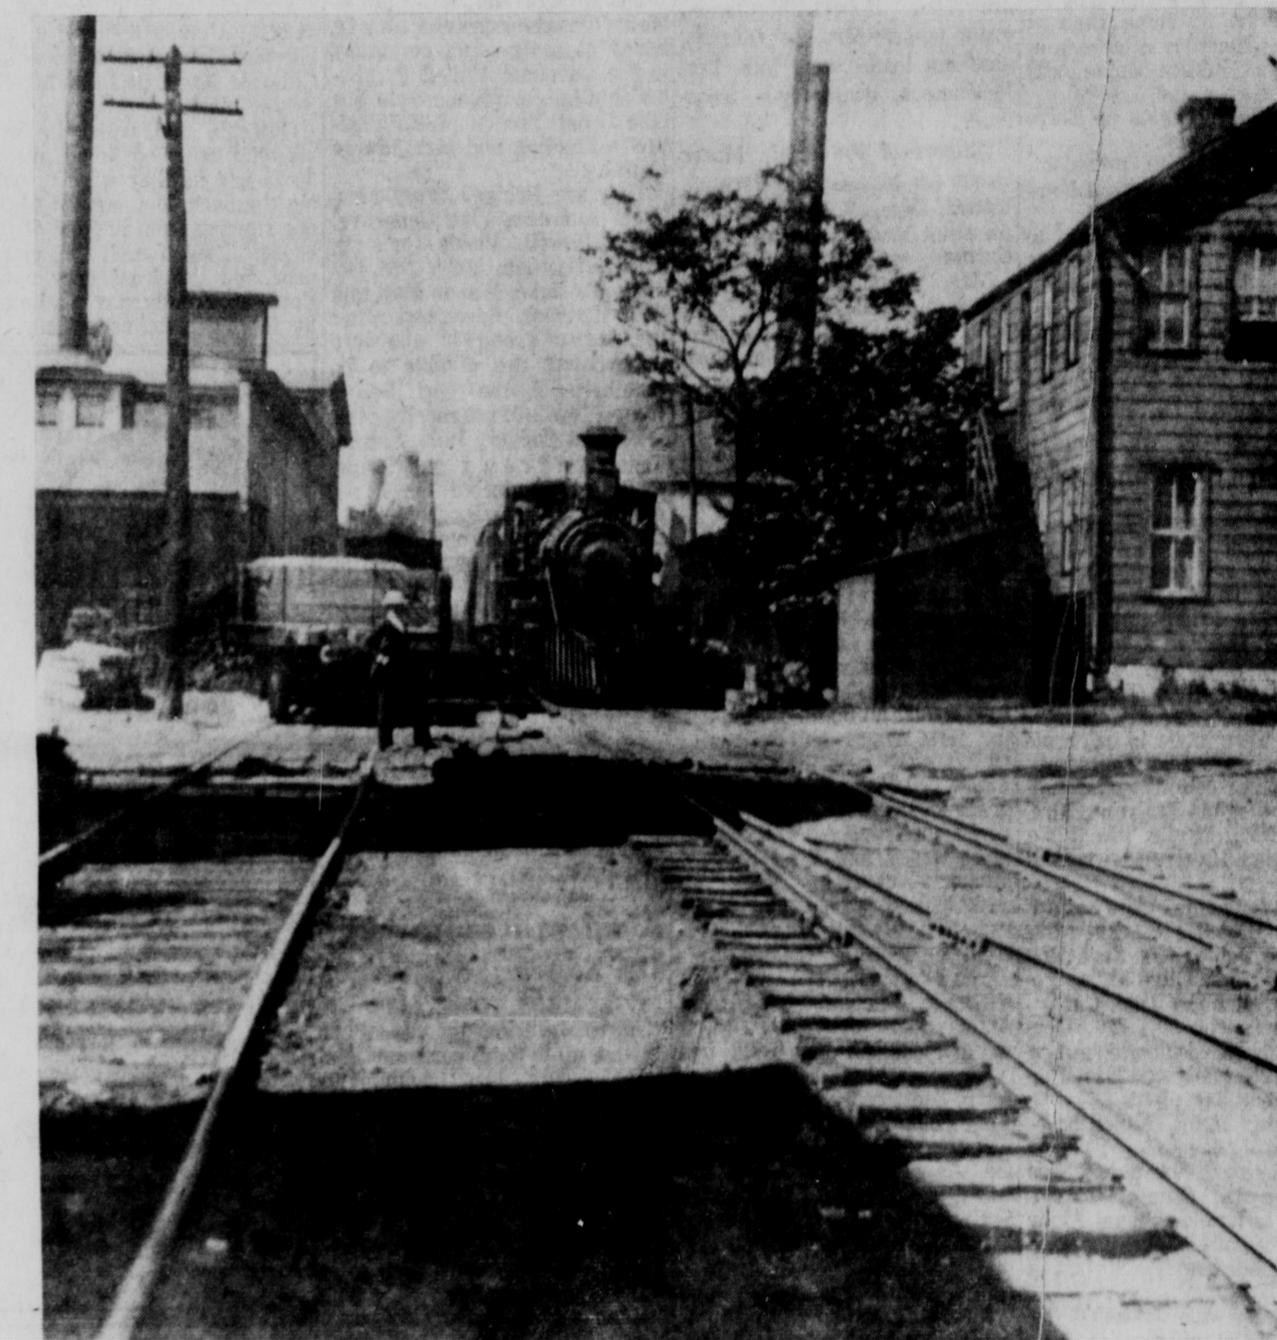

A Common Pleas Court jury in Lisbon found a Civil War veteran not guilty of stealing a horse and buggy in East Liverpool.

ONE OF McDermott's favorite anecdotes concerned the tremendous saloon brawl that he happened onto late one night while walking his beat with McIntrye.

The burly young Irishman, known throughout the region as a tremendous battler, marched into the saloon alone to quell the brawl. McIntrye stood on a pile of railroad ties outside and watched through a window at a safe distance, he remembered.

Some of the buildings have been altered to a greater or lesser degree and some have disappeared because of fire or the wrecker's hammer, but many that flourished in that era of the turn of the century still are recognizable.

The old-timers recall Dave Devine's Restaurant, which advertised meals for 25 cents, and Schleiter's Furniture

THIS ANCIENT locomotive is passing the foot of Washington St. about the turn of the century. The chug-chug of the old steam engine was a familiar sound to residents of the area. Nearby 2nd St. was a bustling trade center at the time.

Erpool. John Rreak, Edward O'Neill and Patrick Lynch were arranging a benefit dance for the New City Hospital

And along 2nd St., unaware of the long decline that still lay in the future, life went on as it had from the early days of the city's history. There was the Potters Supply Co. at the foot of Washington St. And S. C. Williams of the S. C. Williams Co. operated a gas well between Jackson and East Alley, using the fuel to power a sawmill and other equipment at his plant. The same gas well supplied fuel to large homes along 5th St., where the mercantile district had not begun to encroach.

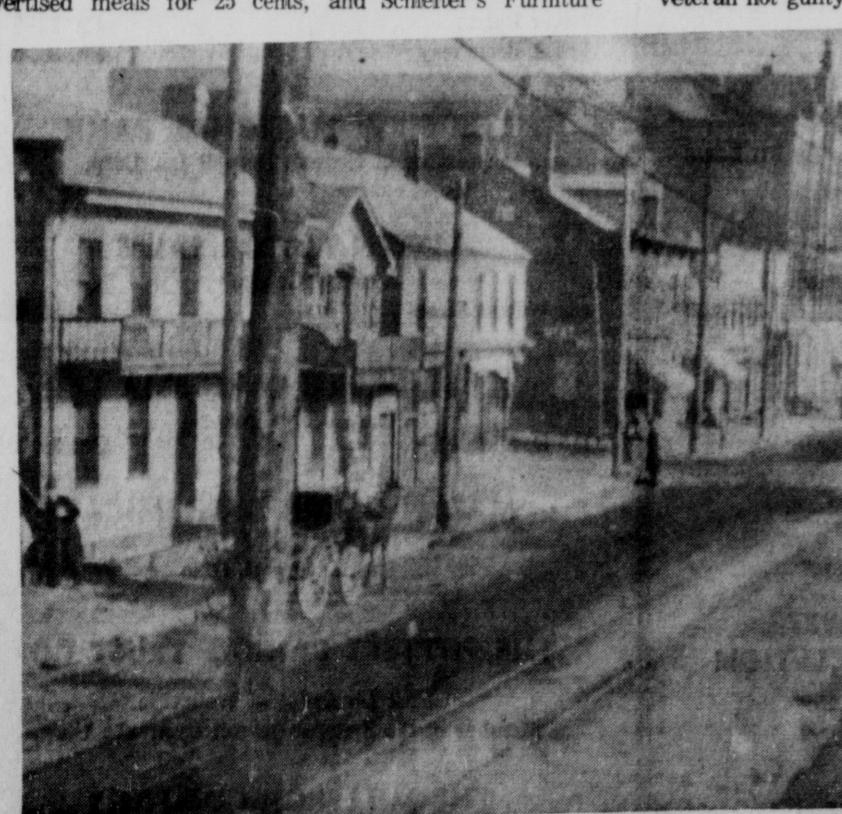

BROZKA HAS many other photos guaranteed to stir nostalgia in old-timers' hearts. Most of the pictures were taken by his father in the period between 1890 and the early 1900's. The elder Brozka recalled he developed and printed his own pictures because commercial photographers felt the amateurs were "trying to cut into their business."

The collection also includes many photos of East Liverpool's early streetcars, Chester, Rock Springs park and other spots associated with traction company operations.

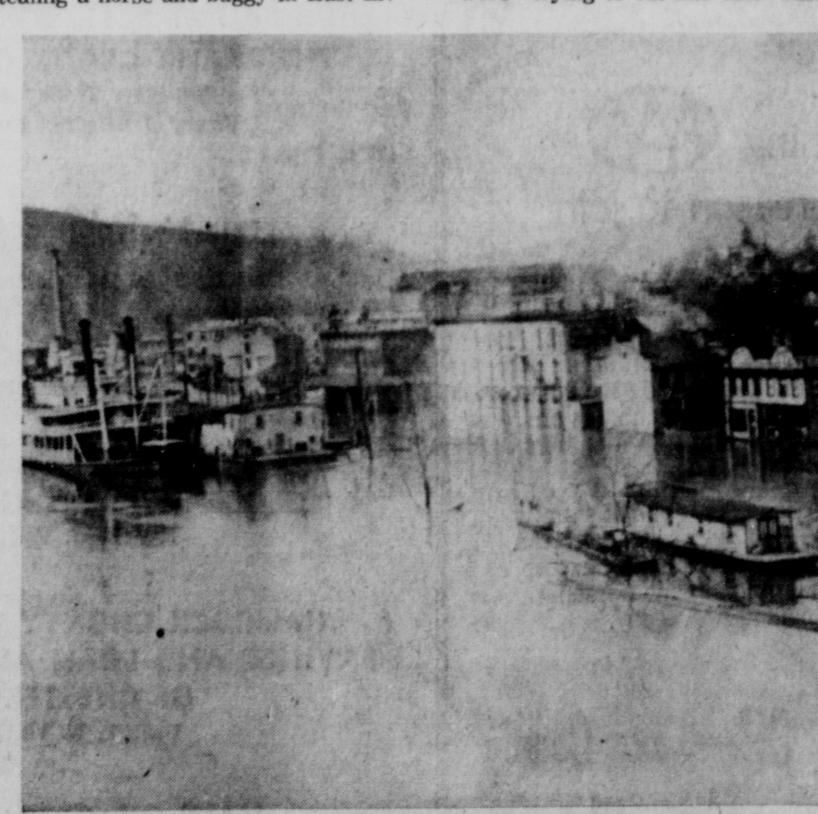

The elder Brozka, an employee of the first streetcar company, helped assemble the first of the electric cars when it was shipped in here by railway flatcar from the factory. Two of his sons, including George, also worked for the streetcar company later.

George Brozka is married to the former Betty Faulk, a daughter of the late George Faulk, who was secretary-treasurer of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction Co. and its successor, the Valley Motor Transit Co. He has resided in Macon for 10 years and is employed as a science department store keeper at Mercer University in Macon.

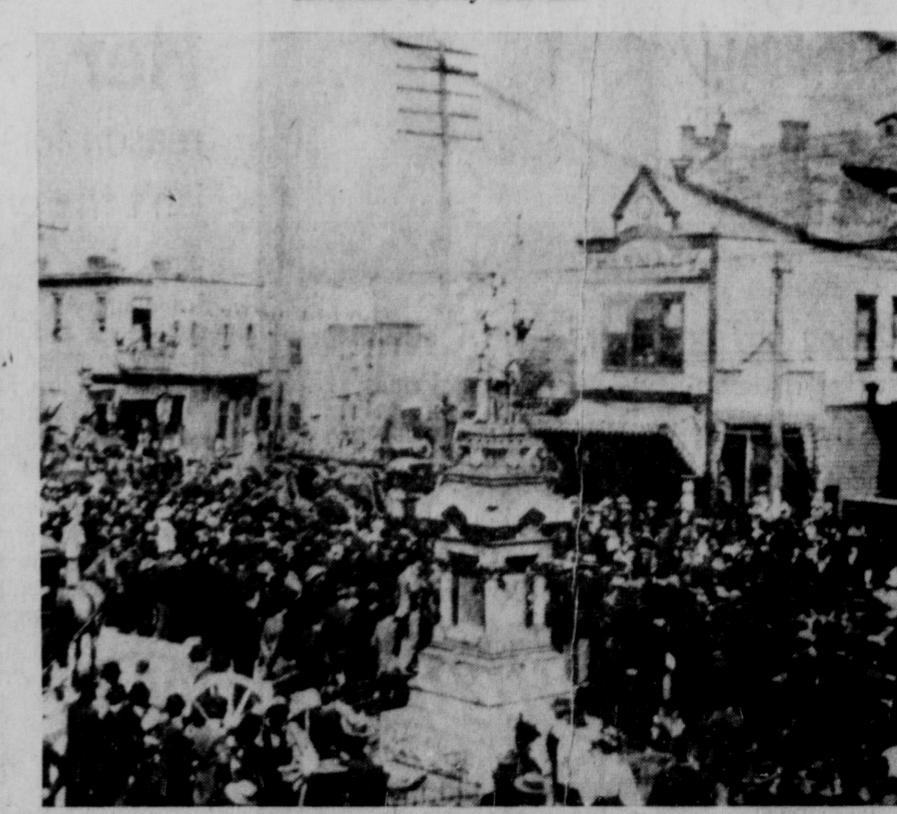

Brozka said he intends to donate many of the historic photos, along with identifying date, to the East Liverpool Historical Society Museum.

HORSE DRAWN vehicles still were being used when this old photograph was taken of the former business area of East Liverpool. Streetcars were the more "modern" mode of travel.

A CIRCUS PARADE about 1900 drew a tremendous crowd to the Diamond. The building marked "Pharmacy" at center right is on the site of the present Little Building.

Industries as well as retail business flourished along 2nd St. and in the riverfront district.

In 1905, the year Brozka was born, John Schleiter's furniture store was flourishing at 128 2nd St. and Dave Devine ran an advertisement each day in the Evening Review: Coming or going, stop at Devine's Restaurant, west side of C&P Depot, 139-141 2nd St., D.A. Devine proprietor."

Brozka remembers the Bagley Co., which dealt in wholesale groceries and confectioners' supplies. It was at 151-153 E. 2nd St. The Bagley Co. imprint appears on a postcard view of flourishing 2nd St.

But businessmen were active, also in the stretch of 5th St. near Market St. and on the Diamond.

In February 1905, Frank Crook bought a lot on 5th St. from William Erlanger and announced he intended to erect a five-story brick business building that probably would cost $47,000. It was termed by the newspaper "the biggest real estate deal of the year." Crook's store then was at 5th and Markets Sts.

The east side of his newly-acquired property faced on what was called Mulberry Alley, now known as Crook Alley. He said it would be necessary to tear down the building occupying the tract, housing the Delmonico Club.

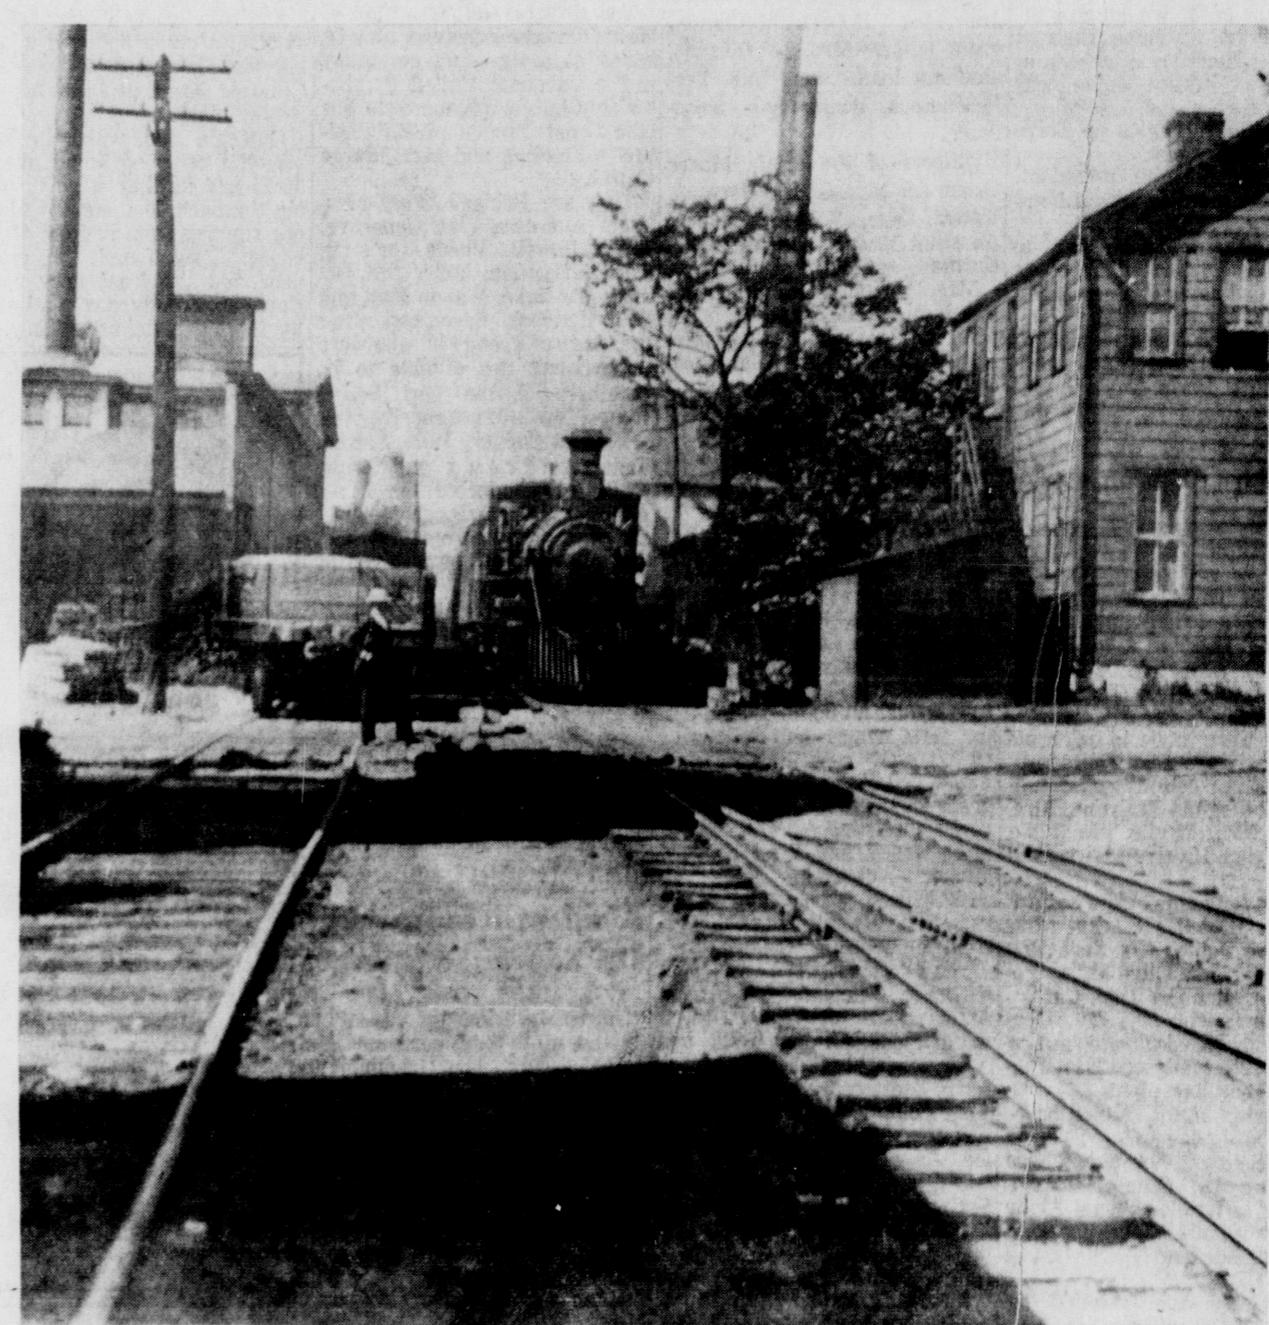

In addition to the business places on 2nd St., others were nearby on Broadway and Market Sts. Joseph Brothers Clothing Store was at 223-226 Market St. and James M. McDole was operating a wallpaper store at 265 Broadway. E.W. and Arthur D. Hill acquired the former home of the Daily Crisis—a building at Broadway and 3rd St.—and announced they would convert it into a warehouse.

W. Smith Fowler was asking Council to widen the sidewalk on the Diamond by at least three feet, remove the Civil War Monument and the pump in the center and put down new brick paving. He said the streetcar companies should erect a waiting room in the Diamond. He was described as the owner of a big tract of property on the west side of the Diamond.

A HUGE ice gorge that had tied up river traffic for more than two weeks let go with a tremendous roar on the morning of Feb. 11, 1905, attracting hundreds to the shore. The newspaper related that many boats were damaged in the ensuing runoff. The next day, fire destroyed a shantyboat at the foot of Union St. and the indigent woman occupant and her five children applied for aid at City Hall.

C. A. Smith announced his new home overlooking Rock Springs Park in Chester would be completed by spring. Pleasant Heights residents were preparing to petition the Board of Education to build a new school in the growing residential area. They said the structure was meant to house 50 pupils and more than 60 were enrolled.

A Common Pleas Court jury in Lisbon found a Civil War veteran not guilty of stealing a horse and buggy in East Liv-

And along 2nd St., unaware of the long decline that still lay in the future, life went on as it had from the early days of the city's history. There was the Potters Supply Co. at the foot of Washington St. And S. C. Williams of the S. C. Williams Co. operated a gas well between Jackson and East Alley, using the fuel to power a sawmill and other equipment at his plant. The same gas well supplied fuel to large homes along 5th St., where the mercantile district had not begun to encroach.

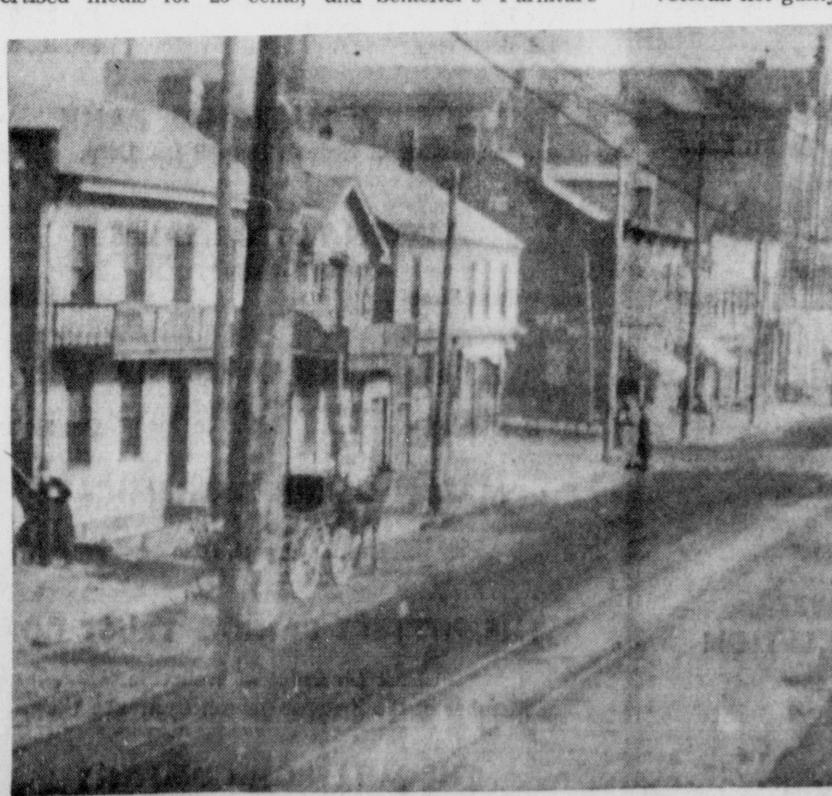

BROZKA HAS many other photos guaranteed to stir nostalgia in old-timers' hearts. Most of the pictures were taken by his father in the period between 1890 and the early 1900's. The elder Brozka recalled he developed and printed his own pictures because commercial photographers felt the amateurs were "trying to cut into their business."

The collection also includes many photos of East Liverpool's early streetcars, Chester, Rock Springs park and other spots associated with traction company operations.

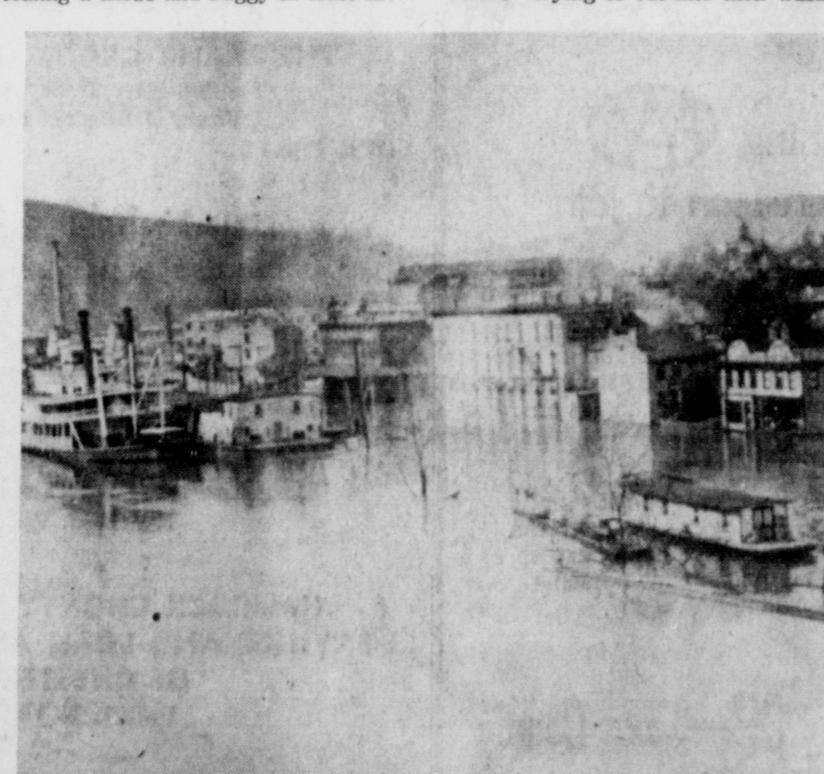

The elder Brozka, an employee of the first streetcar company, helped assemble the first of the electric cars when it was shipped in here by railway flatcar from the factory. Two of his sons, including George, also worked for the streetcar company later.

George Brozka is married to the former Betty Faulk, a daughter of the late George Faulk, who was secretary-treasurer of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction Co. and its successor, the Valley Motor Transit Co. He has resided in Macon for 10 years and is employed as a science department store keeper at Mercer University in Macon.

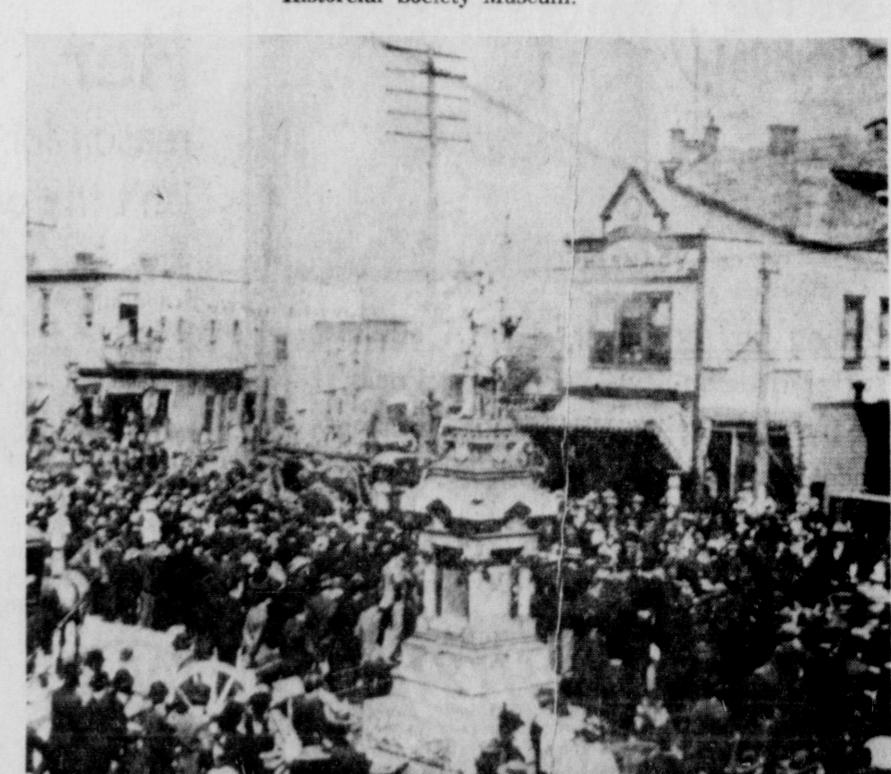

Brozka said he intends to donate many of the historic photos, along with identifying date, to the East Liverpool Historical Society Museum.

HORSE DRAWN vehicles still were being used when this old photograph was taken of the former business area of East Liverpool. Streetcars were the more "modern" mode of travel.

A CIRCUS PARADE about 1900 drew a tremendous crowd to the Diamond. The building marked "Pharmacy" at center right is on the site of the present Little Building.

Camp Fire Girls 'Fly Up' To D.C.

By CLARA HALL

Climaxing two years of seemingly never ending efforts, five girls of Camp Fire Group 57 of Kinoka Council enjoyed a trip by jet to Washington, D. C., last weekend, returning with countless memories and the thought that "all the work was worth while."

They were accompanied by Mrs. Sara Phillips and Mrs. Marge Ludwig, leaders.

ORGANIZED in 1964 as Blue Birds and since flying-up as Camp Fire Girls, the group has participated in a variety of trips, including a visit to Story Book Forest in Ligonier, Pa. and the Pittsburgh zoo and rail depot. They appeared on the Paul Shannon TV show in Pittsburgh and took a cruise on the Good Ship Lilliput.

After careful consideration, the girls decided they would like to fly to Washington for a sightseeing venture.

Individual bank accounts were opened here and each week the girls were to earn and deposit the sum of 25 cents. Many types of odd jobs were found and after two years of saving the necessary funds were on hand.

Greater Pittsburgh Airport never had a more excited group of girls as they boarded the jet for Washington. It was the first flight for all, with the exception of Mrs. Ludwig and Cindi.

The White House, Smithsonian Institution, Lincoln Memorial, Mt. Vernon and the Capitol building were among places visited. The girls witnessed the changing of the guard at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery and visited the graves of President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert Kennedy.

They took an elevator to the top of the Washington Monument, then decided to walk down. The count of the number of steps went as high as 898.

In between some of the tours, which at one time covered nine miles, the girls became tired, took off their shoes and walked barefoot in the rain.

AS ON all such trips, the laughs were many — as when soap suds came oozing from the tennis shoes of Mrs. Phillips (she had washed them before leaving home and apparently had not performed an adequate rinse job) and when they ordered a bucket of ice and five glasses at their hotel, thinking it was free. It wasn't, and the girls had to scramble for the 37 cents needed to cover the delivery. There was nothing left for a "tip" for a disappointed bellboy.

The greatest calamity was the loss of $10 when a purse was left in a cab.

The greatest calamity was the loss of $10 when a purse was left in a cab.

RESIDENTS OF THIS AREA sometimes don't realize how good they really have it in regards to outdoor facilities.

This point was emphasized strongly last weekend by some camping friends from northeastern Ohio who came for a brief visit.

After a tour of Beaver State Park in the Echo Dell area and other sections of the district, they expressed amazement at the natural beauty and the facilities offered. They also were amazed to find Beaver Creek clean enough to permit swimming.

They say they refuse to swim in Lake Erie and wouldn't think of using any of the rivers in their area citing heavy pollution.

Columbiana, Hancock and Beaver Counties have much to offer those who enjoy hunting, fishing, camping and other outdoor sports. Everyone concerned, residents and officials, should work to see these areas are preserved in their natural beauty and to improve present facilities.

People will travel hundreds of miles to visit sections of the country that have much less to offer than anything in the district. We should be proud of what we do have and make every effort to see that the countryside remains unspoiled.

MORE FISH. A special stocking of catchable size channel catfish was made recently in Tomlinson Run Lake in Hancock County.

Purchase of the catfish was made possible from the West Virginia Fish and Aquatic Life Fund which results from payments received from the loss of fish as a result of pollution caused kills.

The fish ranged in size from one half to 10 pounds.

GUILFORD LAKE. Division of Wildlife fisheries personnel are continuing their work at Guilford. More than 10 tons of rough fish have been removed since the reclamation project was started. It is apparent that an over population of white crappie and gizzard shad has prevailed.

Ninety percent of the fish removed have been of these species and evidence shows the fish are severely stunted.

IT WAS RAIN, RAIN, rain, but four East Liverpool men had good luck on a recent trip to Round Lake in Ontario, Canada.

The wet weather didn't deter Jan Burke, Bud Ludwig, Sam Hilditch and Kenneth Shank.

They report they caught enough fish to make the trip worthwhile.

CREDIT SIDE OF PREDATION. Sportsmen have long looked upon predatory animals as a serious threat to the sport of hunting. The common belief was that any animal that killed a game species should be exterminated. Today, this thinking is being challenged.

Various methods have been undertaken to control predator populations and thus protect the more desirable game animals. One method, still used in some areas, is bounty payment. Natural predation however is an essential part of nature's well calculated scheme for a healthy wildlife population.

Predators harvest the surplus of any wildlife crop, taking the weakest, the physically handicapped and the sick. What they do not kill will be removed by weather, disease or starvation.

What most sportsmen do not know, however, is that predators are an asset to the sport. A predator's victims are the weakest of a given wildlife species because they are the easiest to catch. Thus the predator helps to maintain a healthy and alert population of game species.

Predation also helps to control disease. Only the physically superior among the preyed upon species survive to reproduce. The result is a better game animal for the hunter to harvest.

Even the despotic nest robber serves a useful purpose. He forces the feathered victim to move to another area and try for another brood. The result is a staggered hatch, eliminating a total kill of newly-born offspring by a single spell of bad weather.

So the predator does have a credit side to his ledger. He serves a purpose in nature's scheme of things, and if you give him a chance, you'll find he too is a worthy and sporting adversary as any game animal.

BASS, CRAPPIES, bluegills and catfish are biting well on Ohio anglers' hooks in all sections of the state with fishing prospects remaining good. The Ohio Division of Wildlife reported Thursday.

In Lake Erie, white bass fishing is "very good" on all reefs, and perch fishing the same, the latter favoring minnows for bait at the Cedar Point fog horn, and Marblehead. Catfish are hitting in the Portage River along the Catawba Cliffs, and all along areas with rocky shorelines.

The outlook elsewhere:

Central Ohio — Indian, Kiser and Buckeye Lakes all reported good catches of bass, bluegill and crappies. Walleyes are being caught in good numbers below the dam at Deer Creek Reservoir, and all varieties of bait are bringing in bass, catfish, crappies and walleyes at Hoover Reservoir.

Northwestern Ohio — Streams in this area are roily and above normal. Yellow perch, bluegill and a few walleyes are being taken at Ferguson, Metzger and Lima Reservoirs, and at Clear Fork Reservoir fishermen are taking largemouth bass, crappies, bluegill and a few muskie and white bass. Muskies are going for large spoons. Channel catfish are biting on dough balls and worms at Charles Mill Reservoir.

NORTHEASTERN OHIO — This is prime time for walleye fishing with plugs and spinners at Mahoning Reservoir where fishing reported good. Very good catches of bass, bluegill and perch on a variety of plugs is reported at Mogadore Reservoir, and walleye are beginning to hit good now at West Branch Reservoir. The Portage Lakes, Mosquito and Leesville Reservoir also report good walleye fishing.

Southeastern Ohio — Muskie trolling using deep running plugs is getting results at Piedmont Reservoir. At Seneca Lake bass fishing is fair to good with some good catches of catfish in evening and night reported. Several walleye up to four pounds and 22 inches in length have been taken in tail waters below Dillon Reservoir in the Licking River. The Muskingum River, Burr Oak and Hocking River while slightly high and roily are producing some good catches of catfish, a few walleyes and bass.

Southwestern Ohio — Outlook good for weekend fishing at Acton, Stonelick and Rocky Fork Lakes where water is clear. Crappies on minnows and bluegills and bullheads on worms are being taken, with some large mouth at Acton. Lake St. Marys is slightly high and roily but catfish and crappie fishing is good as is the weekend outlook.

IN MOST cases, you — or your insurance — will, not the boy. Assuming the boy exercised reasonable care in cutting the grass, striking the hidden object was an accident. The object was in your lawn. The boy did not put it there.

When 2nd Was First

By ROBERT POPP

A VERITABLE MUSEUM of East Liverpool's past, 2nd St. lies quiet and near-deserted in the hot summer sun, in the last throes of a slow and ugly death that contrasts sharply with a virile, promising youth.

Like a grandparent of old left to doze and dream in a chimney corner, the venerable street still can call forth visions of the past when it was the center of all the mercantile activity of the community — and a lot of the revelry and entertainment, too.

Many East Liverpool residents approaching Social Security age recall with fondness the days when 2nd St.'s pavements echoed to the clopping of many horses' hooves and the clatter of iron-wheeled wagons and streetcars threading their way through the business district crowds.

Twenty or more trains wheeled into the depot every 24 hours, discharging swarms of passengers who hurried to nearby restaurants or checked in at the city's leading hostelry — the Hotel McKinley. Dozens more boarded the eastbound and westbound trains for business and pleasure trips to places like Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

THE CITY WHARF at Broadway, a stone's throw away, was busy, too. Packet boats tied up there frequently to unload passengers or consignments of poultry, livestock and hoop poles.

The railway station and the hotel were two of the busiest spots on a busy street. In addition to the prospective passengers, the depot was crowded with on-lookers who never tired of watching the dramatic arrivals and departures of the trains and speculating about the identities, and missions of the strangers who alighted.

Newsboys always headed for the depot with the first consignment of papers hot off the press. Newspaper reporters haunted the depot to buttonhole departing dignitaries or greet newcomers in hopes of finding a story. Police checked the depot frequently. Since it was the only quick mode of transportation, the railroad was the agency by which most of the crooks of the era went from town to town.

George H. Brozka of Macon, Ga., formerly of East Liverpool, who furnished the photos that accompany this story, remembers 2nd St. when it was past the height of its glory, but still one of the community's busier thoroughfares. Born there in 1905, he spent his boyhood in the 2nd St. area and he remembers vividly many of the sights, smells and sounds of the quieter, slower-paced time.

As a child, he played around a lumber storage yard operated by his father, John Brozka, and watched with fascination the noisy, smoky operation of the blacksmith shop operated by his grandfather, Martin Brozka.

GEORGE BROZKA was born in the family's home on E. 2nd St. between Union and Washington Sts. He remembers playing along the street to the accompaniment of the sound of the horses' hooves on the brick pavement and the screeching wheels of the trolley cars as they descended Washington St., crept along 2nd St. and then headed east near the River Rd. to the terminus of the line at Mulberry St. and Pennsylvania Ave.

Some of his most vivid memories are of watching the riverboats discharge their clucking, bawling cargoes at the Broadway wharf.

"That was one of the highlights of any day, to watch boats like the General Wood or the Besty Ann move in to the wharf," he says. "I can smell those chickens and turkeys yet, and hear the cattle bawling. And many of the boats from downriver brought big loads of hoop poles that were used in making casks for the potteries."

The late Hugh J. McDermott, who joined the police force in 1902, remembered walking the 2nd St. beat as a young patrolman. Forty-five years later, when he was preparing to retire as chief, he recalled some of the saloon brawls and murders that made the business district a garish, dangerous place after dark.

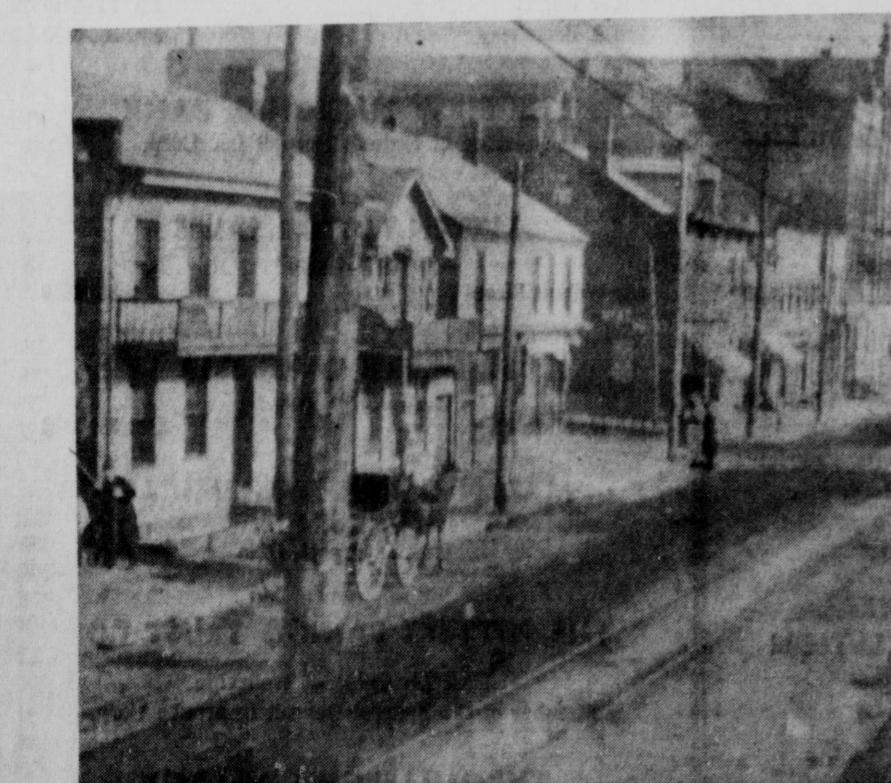

And walking the beat with the young patrolman was a fledgling police reporter, later of Gallipolis. He was working for the old Morning Tribune. He was O. O. McIntyre, who went on to New York City to become the author of one of the most widely-read syndicated columns of his day — "New York Day by Day." McIntyre sometimes referred to McDermott and East Liverpool in his column. And he frequently cited the superior quality of the bean soup he had consumed in railroad terminal restaurants in East Liverpool and Gallipolis.

ONE OF McDermott's favorite anecdotes concerned the tremendous saloon brawl that he happened onto late one night while walking his beat with McIntyre.

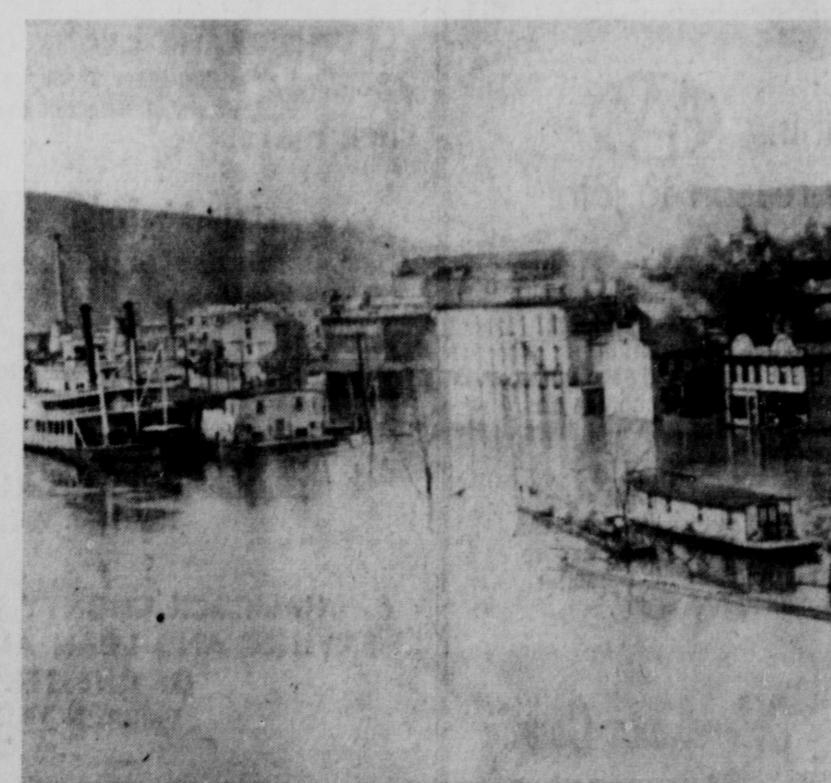

The burly young Irishman, known throughout the region as a tremendous battler, marched into the saloon alone to quell the brawl. McIntyre stood on a pile of railroad ties outside and watched through a window at a safe distance, he remembered.

Some of the buildings have been altered to a greater or lesser degree and some have disappeared because of fire or the wrecker's hammer, but many that flourished in that era of the turn of the century still are recognizable.

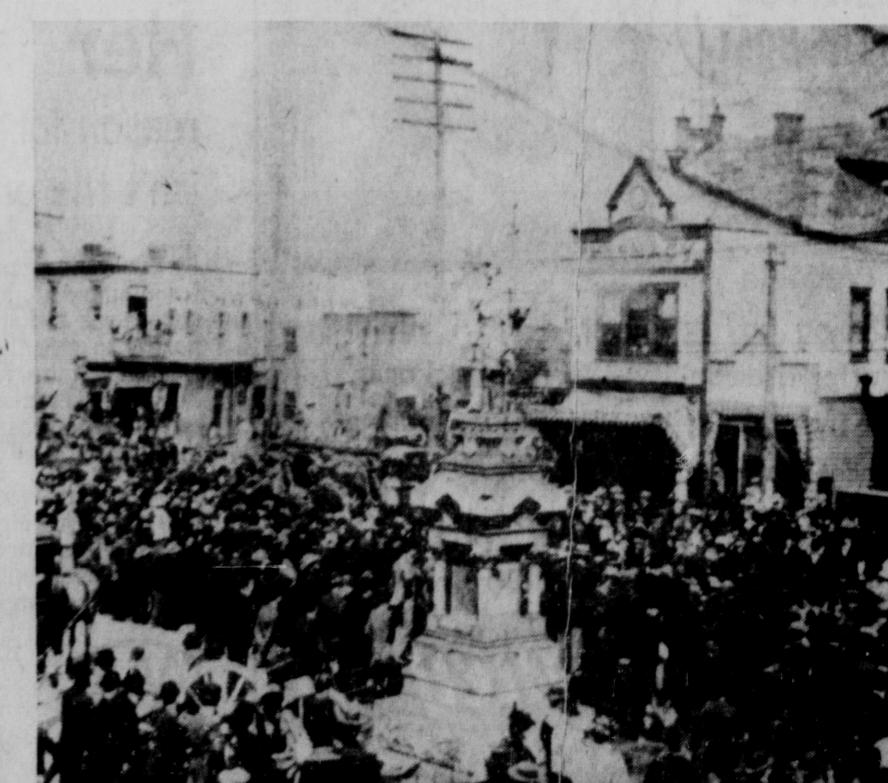

The old-timers recall Dave Devine's Restaurant, which advertised meals for 25 cents, and Schleiter's Furniture

Store and Rayl's Meat Market, almost directly across the street from the restaurant.

Many of the political and social intrigues of the day were threshed out underneath the marquee at the Hotel McKinley or in its plush lobby. Most travelers of note who stopped overnight here were guests at the McKinley. The old hostelry degenerated down through the years, finishing its days under the name Hotel Desylvan as a rooming house. After it finally closed, it was sold by the federal government to satisfy a tax lien and it since has been converted to commercial use.

Brozka remembers in his boyhood that the McKinley had a grand, plush lobby, but he can't recall many of the details. He recalls it was "the best hotel in town" at the time. The late Frank R. O'Hanlon recalled interviewing a visiting senator in the hotel in the era before World War I when he was a cub reporter. And—a half century later and shortly before his death—he remembered the senator cutting off the interview abruptly because he thought one of the reporter's questions was impudent.

THE LATE Patrick J. O'Farrell, who was secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, recalled hustling to the 2nd St. depot with a pushcart loaded with newspapers, hot off the presses at the Morning Tribune, and the brisk business that awaited him among the travelers. Industries as well as retail business flourished along 2nd St. and in the riverfront district.

In 1905, the year Brozka was born, John Schleiter's furniture store was flourishing at 128 2nd St. and Dave Devine ran an advertisement each day in the Evening Review: Coming or going, stop at Devine's Restaurant, west side of C&P. Depot, 139-141 2nd St., D.A. Devine proprietor."

They say they refuse to swim in Lake Erie and wouldn't think of using any of the rivers in their area citing heavy pollution.

Columbiana, Hancock and Beaver Counties have much to offer those who enjoy hunting, fishing, camping and other outdoor sports. Everyone concerned, residents and officials, should work to see these areas are preserved in their natural beauty and to improve present facilities.

People will travel hundreds of miles to visit sections of the country that have much less to offer than anything in the district. We should be proud of what we do have and make every effort to see that the countryside remains unspoiled.

MORE FISH. A special stocking of catchable size channel catfish was made recently in Tomlinson Run Lake in Hancock County.

Purchase of the catfish was made possible from the West Virginia Fish and Aquatic Life Fund which results from payments received from the loss of fish as a result of pollution caused kills.

The fish ranged in size from one half to 10 pounds.

GUILFORD LAKE. Division of Wildlife fisheries personnel are continuing their work at Guilford. More than 10 tons of rough fish have been removed since the reclamation project was started. It is apparent that an over population of white crappie and gizzard shad has prevailed.

Ninety percent of the fish removed have been of these species and evidence shows the fish are severely stunted.

IT WAS RAIN, RAIN, rain, but four East Liverpool men had good luck on a recent trip to Round Lake in Ontario, Canada.

The wet weather didn't deter Jan Burke, Bud Ludwig, Sam Hilditch and Kenneth Shank.

They report they caught enough fish to make the trip worthwhile.

CREDIT SIDE OF PREDATION. Sportsmen have long looked upon predatory animals as a serious threat to the sport of hunting. The common belief was that any animal that killed a game species should be exterminated. Today, this thinking is being challenged.

Various methods have been undertaken to control predator populations and thus protect the more desirable game animals. One method, still used in some areas, is bounty payment. Natural predation however is an essential part of nature's well calculated scheme for a healthy wildlife population.

Predators harvest the surplus of any wildlife crop, taking the weakest, the physically handicapped and the sick. What they do not kill will be removed by weather, disease or starvation.

Outdoor Notes

By Harry L. Stewart

What most sportsmen do not know, however, is that predators are an asset to the sport. A predator's victims are the weakest of a given wildlife species because they are the easiest to catch. Thus the predator helps to maintain a healthy and alert population of game species.

Predation also helps to control disease. Only the physically superior among the preyed upon species survive to reproduce. The result is a better game animal for the hunter to harvest.

Even the despotic nest robber serves a useful purpose. He forces the feathered victim to move to another area and try for another brood. The result is a staggered hatch, eliminating a total kill of newly-born offspring by a single spell of bad weather.

So the predator does have a credit side to his ledger. He serves a purpose in nature's scheme of things, and if you give him a chance, you'll find he too is a worthy and sporting adversary.

BASS, CRAPPIES, bluegills and catfish are biting well on Ohio anglers' hooks in all sections of the state with fishing prospects remaining good. The Ohio Division of Wildlife reported Thursday.

In Lake Erie, white bass fishing is "very good" on all reefs, and perch fishing the same, the latter favoring minnows for bait at the Cedar Point fog horn, and Marblehead.

Catfish are hitting in the Portage River along the Catawba Cliffs, and all along areas with rocky shorelines.

The outlook elsewhere:

Central Ohio — Indian, Kiser and Buckeye Lakes all reported good catches of bass, bluegill and crappies. Walleyes are being caught in good numbers below the dam at Deer Creek Reservoir, and all varieties of bait are bringing in bass, catfish, crappies and walleyes at Hoover Reservoir.

Northwestern Ohio — Streams in this area are roily and above normal. Yellow perch, bluegill and a few walleyes are being taken at Ferguson, Metzger and Lima Reservoirs, and at Clear Fork Reservoir fishermen are taking largemouth bass, crappies, bluegill and a few muskie and white bass. Muskies are going for large spoons. Channel catfish are biting on dough balls and worms at Charles Mill Reservoir.

NORTHEASTERN OHIO — This is prime time for wall-eye fishing with plugs and spinners at Mahoning Reservoir where fishing reported good. Very good catches of bass, bluegill and perch on a variety of plugs is reported at Mogadore Reservoir, and walleye are beginning to hit good now at West Branch Reservoir. The Portage Lakes, Mosquito and Leesville Reservoir also report good walleye fishing.

Southeastern Ohio — Muskie trolling using deep running plugs is getting results at Piedmont Reservoir. At Seneca Lake bass fishing is fair to good with some good catches of catfish in evening and night reported. Several walleye up to four pounds and 22 inches in length have been taken in tail waters below Dillon Reservoir in the Licking River. The Muskingum River, Burr Oak and Hocking River while slightly high and roily are producing some good catches of catfish, a few walleyes and bass.

Southwestern Ohio — Outlook good for weekend fishing at Acton, Stonelick and Rocky Fork Lakes where water is clear. Crappies on minnows and bluegills and bullheads on worms are being taken, with some large mouth at Acton. Lake St. Marys is slightly high and roily but catfish and crappie fishing is good as is the weekend outlook.

Camp Fire Girls 'Fly Up' To D.C.

By CLARA HALL

Climaxing two years of seemingly never ending efforts, five girls of Camp Fire Group 57 of Kinoka Council enjoyed a trip by jet to Washington, D. C., last weekend, returning with countless memories and the thought that "all the work was worth while."

They were accompanied by Mrs. Sara Phillips and Mrs. Marge Ludwig, leaders.

ORGANIZED in 1964 as Blue Birds and since flying up as Camp Fire Girls, the group has participated in a variety of trips, including a visit to Story Book Forest in Ligonier, Pa. and the Pittsburgh zoo and rail depot. They appeared on the Paul Shannon TV show in Pittsburgh and took a cruise on the Good Ship Lilliput.

After careful consideration, the girls decided they would like to fly to Washington for a sightseeing venture.

Individual bank accounts were opened here and each week the girls were to earn and deposit the sum of 25 cents. Many types of odd jobs were found and after two years of saving the necessary funds were on hand.

Greater Pittsburgh Airport never had a more excited group of girls as they boarded the jet for Washington. It was the first flight for all, with the exception of Mrs. Ludwig and Cindi.

The White House, Smithsonian Institution, Lincoln Memorial, Mt. Vernon and the

Capitol building were among places visited. The girls witnessed the changing of the guard at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery and visited the graves of President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert Kennedy.

They took an elevator to the top of the Washington Monument, then decided to walk down. The count of the number of steps went as high as 888.

In between some of the tours, which at one time covered nine miles, the girls became tired, took off their shoes and walked barefoot in the rain.

AS ON all such trips, the laughs were many — as when soap suds came oozing from the tennis shoes of Mrs. Phillips (she had washed them before leaving home and apparently had not performed an adequate rinse job) and when they ordered a bucket of ice and five glasses at their hotel, thinking it was free. It wasn't, and the girls had to scramble for the 37 cents needed to cover the delivery. There was nothing left for a "tip" for a disappointed bellboy.

The greatest calamity was the loss of $10 when a purse was left in a cab.

The greatest calamity was the loss of $10 when a purse was left in a cab.

RESIDENTS OF THIS AREA sometimes don't realize how good they really have it in regards to outdoor facilities.

This point was emphasized strongly last weekend by some camping friends from northeastern Ohio who came for a brief visit.

After a tour of Beaver State Park in the Echo Dell area and other sections of the district, they expressed amazement at the natural beauty and the facilities offered. They also were amazed to find Beaver Creek clean enough to permit swimming. They say they refuse to swim in Lake Erie and wouldn't think of using any of the rivers in their area citing heavy pollution.

Braves Win On 12th Inning Blast

By MIKE BRYSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Three little smashes kept Atlanta riding high, but seven singles in one inning didn't do a thing for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Braves used Bob Tillman's one-out homer in the 12th inning to turn back San Francisco 4-3 Friday night, after consecutive bases empty homers by Rico Carty and Bob Aspromonte had tied it for Atlanta in the ninth.

The Pirates, meanwhile, paraded 12 men to the plate—and seven of them singled—in a seven-run third inning, but Philadelphia rallied for an 8-7 victory.

In other National League action, Los Angeles remained a game behind the Braves in the West Division with a 4-2 victory over Cincinnati; New York edged St. Louis 4-3; Chicago snapped a five-game losing streak by beating Montreal 2-0.

The Pirates, meanwhile, paraded 12 men to the plate—and seven of them singled—in a seven-run third inning, but Phila-fice fly—the 1,537th RBI of his career, putting him into a tie for 15th place with Joe DiMaggio on the all-time list.

The Cubs added another in the fifth when Hands singled and scored when loser Jerry Robertson walked Paul Popovich, Billy Williams and Ron Santo in succession.

Larry Dierker stopped San Diego on four hits for his ninth victory in the opener, then the Astros' Curt Blefary doubled to touch off a three-run rally in the seventh of the nightcap to complete the sweep.

Tommie Sisk had blanked Houston on two hits until Denis Menke had a one-out single in the seventh. John Edwards walked and Blefary then doubled Menke home with the tying run. Sisk walked Gary Geiger intentionally and Gary Ross relieved and walked Doug Rader, forcing home another run. Marty Martinez' sacrifice fly produced an insurance marker.

Edwards knocked in two Astro runs with a triple and scored a third in the opener.

San Francisco's Mike McCormick had checked the Braves on four hits until Carty hit his third Homer of the season with one out in the ninth and Aspromonte followed with his first of the year.

Reliever Frank Linzy then retired the next nine Braves in order before Tillman's winning shot—his third.

Gene Stone's run-scoring triple in the seventh gave Philadelphia its victory after the Pirates' early explosion.

The Pirates' big inning gave them a 7-3 lead, but John Briggs' two-run Homer chopped it to 7-5 in the bottom of the third.

Larry Hisle's RBI triple in the fourth and Cookie Rojas' run-scoring single in the sixth tied it, before Stone went to work.

Don Drysdale continued his successful pitching comeback and Jim Lefebvre backed him with a pair of RBIs as the Dodgers checked Cincinnati.

Drysdale, 3-2, sidelined from late April until last Sunday with a sore shoulder, gave up only three hits in six innings before leaving with a 3-0 lead.

"He pitched real well for a second outing after being away so long," said Manager Walt Alston. "He told me he was a little tired and I decided six innings were enough."

Drysdale said his arm felt "stronger than it did Sunday. It has reached the point where I got to keep throwing and work up to a full game."

Lefebvre knocked in one run with a single in the second, scored in the fifth on Maury Wills' infield single and had a sacrifice fly in the sixth.

Ryan, the world record-holder in the mile with a clocking of 3:51.1, set his sights on an unprecedented double victory in the mile and three-mile, a feat made even more difficult by the schedule. After the mile, there's just little more than an hour's rest before the three-mile.

Kansas' top challenger was speed-laden San Jose State, paced by jaunty John Carlos and a host of other sprinters.

Carlos, who says he won't be satisfied until he runs the 100-yard dash in less than nine seconds, unseated defending champion Lennox Miller of Southern California Friday with a 9.2 in the finals.

"The 100 is just an extra added attraction for me," Carlos said after the race. "I'm a 220 man and nobody's going to be at me in it. The hard part (the 100) is over now. I want to get 25 or 30 points for my school."

Villanova's Erv Hall defeated three-year rival Richmond Flowers of Tennessee by turning in a 13.3 in the 120 high hurdles. But it was Flowers' teammate, freshman Bill High, who put the pressure on Hall and finished second. Flowers was third.

Oregon State got victories from Steve Deutremont in the hammer throw and Jim Barkley in the 3,000-meter steeplechase and was 10 points behind Kansas after Friday's action.

Villanova was third with 17.

Ryun-Led Kansas Eyes NCAA Title

By JOHN VAN MOL

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) —

Kansas, banking on the endurance of distance ace Jim Ryun, appeared a sure bet to end an eight-year domination by West Coast teams in the NCAA Track and Field Championships today.

By the time the last of 13 final events—some of them nationally televised (ABC)—are over tonight, the Jayhawks hope for 60 points.

That's what they figure it will take to win, double what they had after seven events were completed Friday.

Ryun, the world record-holder in the mile with a clocking of 3:51.1, set his sights on an unprecedented double victory in the mile and three-mile, a feat made even more difficult by the schedule.

After Steubenville had taken a 2-0 lead Blair-Morse posted three runs in the third and a single run in the sixth.

Blair-Morse played the Steubenville Legion to a 6-6 tie before the contest was called due to darkness Friday at Steubenville in an exhibition game.

The two teams entered the seventh inning tied 4-4 and Blair-Morse scored twice in the top half of the inning but Steubenville bounced back for a pair of runs to tie it and send the game into extra innings.

Bill Montgomery went six innings for the East Liverpool nine giving up 10 hits. Kim Kemple came on in relief. Palmer started and Koniski came on in relief in the sixth.

After Steubenville had taken a 2-0 lead Blair-Morse posted three runs in the third and a single run in the sixth.

Blair-Morse and Kemple had two hits apiece for Blair-Morse.

Midland Legion Hands Aliquippa 8-3 Defeat

Larry Lochart's bases loaded double highlighted a five run second inning and the Midland Legion went on to down the Aliquippa Legion 8-3 in a Beaver County American Legion League game at Midland last evening. The game was called after six innings because of darkness.

The win gives Midland a 5-5 record and the sixth place in the standings of the Western Division of the league.

Aliquippa opened the scoring in their half of the second, getting a tally on an error and a pair of singles by George Feher and Dan Delurko.

Midland came back with a five run rally, enough to sew up the decision. Delurko, Aliquippa starting hurler, had control problems and was in a jam immediately. He walked Bob Prodonovich, then hit Joe Pillar. George Mraovic was safe on an error by George Suder. Dave Matteo banged a single to center to score Prodonovich and Pillar was at the plate attempting to score from second. Mark Braund drew a base on balls and Jim D'Itri was hit with a pitch to load the bases again.

Tim Rhodes relieved Delurko on the hill for Aliquippa and promptly got Scotty Newtz on a routine fly to left field with the runners holding. Lockhart picked on a 2-2 pitch and lined it over third base along the foul line for two bases and cleared the sacks to give Midland a 5-1 lead.

Aliquippa picked up a run in the third on a walk, a single by George Gula and a fielder's choice. Newtz ended the frame with a diving catch of Bill Morgan's low line drive.

Midland added run in their half of the third and disposed

"Ohio has the lowest rate of unemployment of any state in the nation," Rhodes said. "Much of the credit for this must go to the people of Ohio and all groups who have worked together to build and construct a better state."

Lowest In History

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes announced today that Ohio's unemployment last month dropped to 1.9 per cent—the lowest in the history of the state.

The total civilian labor force in May reached 4,443,500, an increase of 120,300 above last May. The number of persons working in nonagricultural wage and salary categories totaled 3,881,400 — up 135,000 over May, 1968.

"Ohio has the lowest rate of unemployment of any state in the nation," Rhodes said. "Much of the credit for this must go to the people of Ohio and all groups who have worked together to build and construct a better state."

U.S. Marbles Crown

Honeywell Computer Flash

The Auto/Strobonar 330 computer flash makes indoor picture-taking as simple as outdoor in the sun. No guesswork, calculating or fussing with hot bulbs or cubes. Just set camera initially and the Auto/Strobonar 330 takes over from there. Thousands of flashes from built-in rechargeable battery (or from house current). Come in, see how it works.
